

La Bibliofilia complete archive 1899-2014

Now available on Torrossa

The latest digitisation project for publications from Leo S. Olschki, the complete archive of La Bibliofilia is of considerable historical importance.

With 479 issues published between 1899 and 2014, the journal is one of Italy's oldest and most influential research publications on the bibliography and history of the book. La Bibliofilia hosts contributions by Italian and international experts, presenting the latest research, debates, reviews and studies on the book, publishing, bibliography and typography.

Currently directed by Professor Edoardo Barbieri, the journal boasts an A rating, the highest level awarded by ANVUR, the Italian national agency for research evaluation.

SPECIAL OFFER

Interested institutions may purchase the complete collection with a special 15% discount.

Single years can be also acquired separately; a discount is offered on the content for years already owned in print by the institution.

The two offers cannot be used in conjunction.
